

Archaeology Field Summer School 2020

Explore Medieval Anarchy in the UK

Are you an undergraduate student studying anthropology, archaeology, community heritage, history, or museum studies? Get hands-on and gain experience at a fascinating archaeological dig in England.

This practical, field-based course is a unique opportunity to work on a recently discovered site from the 12th-century Medieval Anarchy period: a time of rivalry and violence between English and Norman royals. You will develop your excavation techniques with expert staff from Bristol, a top 10 UK university.*

Our exciting social programme will help you explore Stonehenge, Bath and the city of Bristol with our team of mentors. Tuition, meals, accommodation and activities are included; you'll need to cover your travel and insurance.

Dates: 5 to 18 July 2020

Price: £2,745

Credit: 10 unit credits, suggested as equivalent to 5 ECTS or 3 US semester credits

Entry requirements: GPA of 3.0 or 60-63% in the UK or C on the ECTS scale; studying a degree aligned to anthropology, archaeology, history or humanities

Apply by: 1 April 2020

Tel: +44 (0)117 428 3070

Email: global-summer@bristol.ac.uk

Find out more:
bristol.ac.uk/global-summer

